

Draw an animal

Each child is given a small plastic model of an animal. They are told to look at the animal and carefully draw a large picture of the animal. They should try to draw what it looks like.

Very young children will have a hard time drawing what they see rather than what they know, but still, this is a useful exercise. The examples here are from very young children (about 6 years old).

